eco product innovation

PLA

Polylactic acid, also known as PLA, is derived from any type of fermentable sugar, which means PLA plastic products are made from renewable resources such as corn starch, sugarcane, or potato starch. PLA plastic is biodegradable and compostable breaking down naturally over time and without leaving any harmful residue in the environment. It is also a non-toxic plastic making it safe for use in food contact products.

RPET

rPET is PET (Polyethylene terephthalate) plastic that has been recycled, reprocessed, and made into something new, more often rPET is made through the recycling of plastic bottles. Choosing rPET helps create a circular economy by keeping precious materials that have already been extracted from the earth in circulation. It also supports the recycling industry, saves energy, resources, and rescues these plastics from landfills where they can take thousands of years to break down.

bamboo

Bamboo is a very fast growing, renewable and easy-to-grow resource. It doesn't require any pesticides or chemical fertilisers and can be harvested in 3-5 years. It's production into fibres has a lower environmental impact than other forms of fibre, especially synthetic ones. And it produces more oxygen than trees and plays an important role in the balance of oxygen and carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

stone paper

Stone paper is a completely non-toxic and biodegradable alternative to paper. Stone paper consists mainly of calcium carbonate, a substance found in rocks and is completely tree-free and it doesn't require water, toxins, or bleach in the production process. Stone paper will degrade safely, without the emission of harmful gases in up to 12 months if left in nature. The paper is also hard wearing and water resistant.

wheat straw

Wheat Straw is the byproduct once wheat is harvested. The individual fibres of the straw contain 'lignin' which is a naturally occurring ingredient in plants which gives them the durability they need to stay upright during growth. Once broken down, lignin is combined with other materials to create a mouldable substance used for product creation. Wheat Straw is entirely biodegradable, taking up to 6 months to compost at home, it is also odourless, non-allergenic and gluten free.

let's talk compliance

Our responsibilities towards others, within our immediate and international community, are part of our core values as an organisation. When it comes to compliance, the selection of both our products and the suppliers we work with is always at the forefront of our minds.

safety, innovation & quality

We select our products with safety, as well as innovation and quality as the key criteria and only work with verified and trusted suppliers and factories.

product safety & compliance

We work on a programme of product safety testing to ensure that our products are safe for use and comply with safety standards and legislation. In addition to our in-house team, we work with Independent Quality Solutions Ltd (IQS), who provide us with advice on the toy industry and ever-evolving demands of safety legislation.

Our laboratory testing is carried out worldwide and is always undertaken in ISO 17025 accredited laboratories and to the standards required for the country of sale.

factory compliance

We have a factory compliance programme, which starts with the on boarding of new suppliers to ensure they are aligned with our trading values, abide by core labour requirements and provide a safe and healthy place of work for their employees.

We work with our factories to ensure factory audits to international standards such as Sedex SMETA and BSCI are undertaken on a rolling basis and that we are satisfied with the results.

product inspections

Product inspections are a vital step in managing product quality when working with manufacturers abroad.

We rely on inspection services from leading experts. Their product quality assurance methods ensure consistency in the products that we supply.
