

David Ross

Assistant Commissioner
Transnational Crime Program
Australian Taxation Office

Short Description

David is Assistant Commissioner of the ATO's Transnational Crime Program, dealing with the most ambitious, sophisticated tax interventions the ATO undertakes with its partners. David also has over 33 years extensive experience in public administration roles which have spanned taxation, intelligence, money laundering, cyber-enabled crime, complex fraud, anti-corruption strategies and national security.

Full Bio

David is Assistant Commissioner of the ATO's Transnational Crime Program. In this role, David is responsible for dealing with cases of serious fraud and financial crime by way of civil and criminal investigations. These cases are the most ambitious, sophisticated tax interventions the ATO undertakes with its partners including the Joint Chiefs of Global Tax Enforcement (J5).

David has had extensive experience in public administration roles which have spanned taxation, intelligence, money laundering, cyber-enabled crime, complex fraud, anti-corruption strategies and national security with both National and State agencies over the past 33 years. He is an Adjunct Lecturer in Criminology at the University of Queensland, a Bureau member of the OECD's Taskforce for Tax and Other Crimes (TFTC) and currently leads the J5 Enablers Operations sub-group.