Our philosophy

DJIN SPIRITS has been developed in the continuity of the work and with the same philosophy that Romuald Vincent has been following for 8 years now within his company MAISON DÂME specialized in the production of premium craft spirits: namely a local and eco-responsible approach, which combines tradition and innovation by relying on the power of medicinal plants and a thousand-year-old know-how specific to the village of Saint-Brice in Charente. Its objective: to make the most harmonious marriages by sublimating the aromas and the active principles of the plants to give you all the benefits of Nature.

From this point of view, the organic positioning, traceability and short circuits seem to us the most coherent approach to adopt. In addition, the organic sector represents a development axis all the more important for the non-alcoholic sector, which is still young and truly under-represented from this point of view. Insofar as this type of production is part of an approach that can be described as "well-being", working in organic is therefore logical, it is clearly what consumers and new generations are looking for, and for us it is above all a guarantee of recognition and additional quality for our work.

A family company

Romuald Vincent (Creation and production):

"I turned to the world of spirits 8 years ago to revive an old family production imagined by my grandfather. This first experience allowed me to familiarize myself with the extraction and distillation technics at the heart of the liquorist's profession, in a constant search for improvement and innovation; which led to the award of more than 40 international medals for the quality of my cuvées. My current ambition is to contribute to the enhancement of the non-alcoholic industry while preserving a form of excellence and french avant-gardism. "

Claudine Vincent (Supervision and logistics):

"My motivation: to take part in a meaningful, innovative family project with values that correspond to me. To use all my knowledge and skills to contribute to the development of this project while respecting the environment. "

« [...] Very fresh, very crisp, bond dry, it has a wonderful kind of acidity and then on the mid pallet you feel the wonderful kind of spicy character of cinnamon, cardamom and other Christmas spices complemented by those kind of fresh citrus, more like a green apple and peel. A really interesting beverage to discover[...]»
